Good to hear! I should be able to clear up some more HD space too, didn't want to keep deleting things if it wasn't going to work anyway. Did you buy the programs on Ebay or just find them for download on the internet?

Ooops. That'll teach me to pay attention. 😴 I signed up for 1 month of 4shared to allow faster downloads but it's still only doing 1 at a time. Might have to wait a day till it activates my acct.

It's immediate. I've done the same thing and once it's ordered, it takes effect on your account. Log out and log back in. You can download up to ~2GB at a time, so select 10 or so of the "part" files and click download. Then while that downloads, you can then select another 10 and download, until you've clicked all. Then they'll all simultaneously download.

And the news is...

PROGMAN AND DIS NOW WORK!
My simple mistake was turning off the firewall. I never have to mess with it which is why it escaped my mind. Just programmed my door locks to lock after x mph. 🚗

Now the question is, would it be possible to allow Progman to program while the car is running? I don't want the battery to get too low while programming and I don't have a charger. Even if I did, I'd have nowhere to plug it into as the car is far from an outlet...

I've tried logging out and back in many times, still not allowing more than one at a time and also having to wait for that annoying timer to run down first.

Ok, I'll try that. Thanks guys.

I only meant during Progman. I wouldn't try updating a DME without constant power.

Also, spencers,
I'd like to make a correction to your document.

On the section for configuring DIS/GT1, where you have to log in to root to change some settings:

> At the login prompt type root
> Choose option 1 to choose a password. For the easiest to remember, I recommend: password
> A few lines of text will be generated, the last being TERM = (scoansi) _
> Hit the enter key.
> Type: cd /etc
> Press enter
> Type: vi hosts
> Use the arrow key to move the cursor down to the entry 127.0.0.1 localhost
> Press the "o" key to add an empty line below it.
> Now, without any typing mistakes, add 192.168.68.1 diaghead diaghead
> Keystrokes should be: 192.168.68.1(TAB)diaghead(SPACE)diaghead
> Press ESC
> Type: :wq
> Now type: init 0

Once you type in "192.168.68.1 diaghead diaghead", the following section is incorrect. Pressing ESC and then typing wq does nothing other than emit annoying beeps. I believe the correct process is, once you are done typing, press Shift+q and then type in "wq" next to the colon at the bottom. That will then produce the # next to which you type in "init 0".

I sat there for a good couple of minutes trying to figure out how to proceed and save the changes. 😊
